

EDUC3310: Teaching and Theories of Learning

Credit Hours: 3

Clock Hours: 45/0/0

This course provides students with insight into educational psychology and the theories of learning, related to modern day teaching methods. Students will understand how current day teaching methods focus on learning styles rather than just educational deliver and be able to incorporate this knowledge into their own teaching and learning strategies. Various approaches to learning and teaching will be studied, students will create a lesson plan, and produce a mock teaching experience.